Netia to provide consultants for Polregio's videomats

Netia (Polsat Plus Group) and Avista have launched a pilot project to sell tickets of the rail carrier Polregio in videomats.

The project aims to make it easier for travelers to purchase tickets and increase the availability of ticket offices.

Passengers will be able to purchase a ticket independently as in a classic ticket machine, or connect during a video call with Netia's call center, where a consultant will be able to assist the passenger in operating the machine or take over the desktop remotely and operate it on behalf of the customer.

"Netia Group has a great deal of experience in supporting travelers. I am convinced that our consultants, who have been providing the highest level of Netia Customer Service to the largest rail carriers for many years, will also prove perfect as customer assistants in the process of supporting the purchase of tickets at the vending machines," says Jolanta Lorenc, director in the B2B area of the Netia Group.
